Dear Elected Officials, Community Leaders, and Friends:

As your Congressman, it is my duty and responsibility to keep you informed and educated about funding opportunities that could help your community. Because of the interest all of you have in learning about and applying for grants and other types of assistance to support your mission, I will be hosting a grant conference at the Birmingham Jefferson Convention Complex which will bring together directors from federal, state, and local agencies, organizations, and institutions to provide an overview of funding resources on May 1. At my request, the President's HUD Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives will present an in-depth grant-writing curriculum on May 2-3.

Each year there are many opportunities for you to apply for and receive funding. On May 1, a comprehensive agenda will provide an overview of funding sources through tracks of breakout sessions targeted to different groups of constituents. City, county, and statewide elected officials and their administrative staff; law enforcement officials; fire officials and other first responders; faith-based and community-based non-profits; business leaders, business owners, and Chambers of Commerce; education leaders; and any other interested individuals are invited and encouraged to attend.

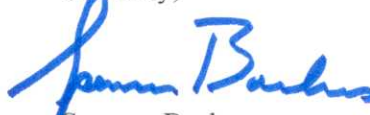

On May 2-3, "The Art and Science of Grant Writing" curriculum will be presented to those individuals and organizations interested in learning specific details and strategies that will improve their federal grant writing ability.

If you do not have access to email, please call my office and request to be added to the distribution list. If possible, please call Michael Staley or Jennifer Pino in my Birmingham District Office with any questions at (205) 969-2296 or send an email to Bachusgrantconference@mail.house.gov indicating your interest.

Space will be limited so it is encouraged that you RSVP for this special event as soon as the official conference agenda is circulated through the distribution list.

Thank you for allowing me to represent the 6th District and the State of Alabama in Washington, D.C.

Sincerely,

Spencer Bachus
Member of Congress
